If you happen to own a vintage doll, discovering that it's worth it is probably an effort you want to pursue. This price guide will be a valuable resource as you start pricing your doll collection. While you may not own one of the dolls on this list, the information provided can help shed light on how much to expect for your doll. You can use information for similar dolls to compare with yours. For example, you can get a pretty good idea based on where and when it was made, as well as the materials that it has. You will also find market analysis and trends for different doll styles that will be helpful in figuring out how much your doll is worth. Size: 15 inchMarks: 1 FG Production Date: About 1880Characteristics: Bisc, swivel head with a tusk shoulder plate and blue glass enamel eyes. Painted features include feathered eyebrows. She wears a brunette mohair wig on a cork pate. Price: About $1,500 at auction. Recent market values put this doll closer to the $2,000 to $2,500 range. Comments: Development of a nine-piece regional outfit Morbihan, Brittany region of France. The doll wears a four-foot gilded cross. The lace on the coiffe, pantlets, and sous-sleeves are beautiful and consistent. The doll also has a blue wool apron, which is part of the outfit. Market report: French fashion dolls, especially in original costumes, continue to rise in price. Size: 14 inchMarks: Unmarked DATE Doll Produced: Very early poupee, circa 1865. Features: The doll has a bisque shoulder head and painted facial features. The doll has a hint of a smile. Brunette mohair wig over cork pate. A French baby has a fashion body with a slender torso, one arm and legs, and separated fingers. Price: About $1,900 at auction.Comments: The beautiful doll is identical to the earliest signed navel models from Bru. The doll wears a sophisticated suit from Puy-de-Dome in L'Auvergne. Clothing includes luxurious fabrics, including silk and velvet. The doll's shoes are wooden and leather saboteurs. The doll wears a brass brand Coeur coulant necklace and carries a woven basket of eggs. Market report: While painted-eyed French fashion dolls tend to sell less than glass-eyed dolls, there are some exceptions. Remarkably, these are very early dolls such as Huret or others from the early 1860s. All the original outfit adds to the value of the doll. Another generalization is that French fashion dolls in regional costumes are sold less than in urban or urban costumes. However, it is not always true where luxury fabrics are used, and the outfit building is of excellent quality. Size: 6 inchMarks: The doll is marked with one on the head and torso. Production date: Circa 1885Characteristy: Round-faced with a turning head. Torso is very slender with a waist and a defined navel. Hands are modeled in a bent position elbows, folded with his right hand and folded with his left hand. The legs are also slender with defined knees and tiny ankles. Boots with four straps with bows. The doll has glass glass eyes, feathered eyebrows, dyed eyelashes, accented nostrils and eye angles. The mouth is closed with an accent line between the lips. Wig original blonde mohair over plaster pate. Price: About $1,300 at auction.Comments: Exceptional and beautifully modeled and painted dolls are equal in quality to many large Kestner dolls. Plaster pate is often found on Kestner all-bisque. Market report: The quality of all-bis antique dolls continue to trend in price growth as collectors understand their fine details. In addition, the trend towards small dolls of this size continues because collectors often do not have room for large dolls after the collection period. Size: 3 inches seatedMarks: NoneDate production: Circa 1920Characteristics: The doll is a single figure of an adult. The doll drew facial features, pink slippers and a brunette mohair wig. The garment is all-original and consists of 1930s Turkish harem-style fashion clothes with green turban and beaded earrings. Price: The doll in excellent condition is about $500 to $700; with two fingers broken on a bent arm (like this doll), $300 at auction. Some dolls made in a similar style have been found stamped by Bavaria, while other accessories such as mirrors and parrots. Dolls holding accessories have higher values.Comments: A beautifully modeled doll, although it is unusual to find with the original costume. Market report: The glut of doll offerings on eBay has caused smaller models of beauty dolls for swimming to go down in price. Many examples can be found in the range of $75 to $200. However, more unusual models, especially with original clothes, fine painting or unusual modeling, will bring much more. Size: 13 inchMarks: 13/0 Production date: About 1900Characteristics: Bisque head with blue glass inserted eyes. Painted features, including individual eyelashes. Open your mouth with four teeth and a blonde mohair wig over a pate cork. The body of the French composition and wood is completely together. Price: About $575 at auction.Comments: Beautiful, well-preserved original costume of the Savoy region, France. Market report: Unmarked French average quality bebes have been flat over the past few years. However, original outfits are always desirable. Size: 29 inchMarks: L 1/2 Made in Germany; 15 1/2 171 6 (head) Germany (body)Production date: Around 1900.Characteristics: The doll has a bisque head socket, blue glass sleep eyes, dyed individual upper and lower lashes, and feathered eyebrows. Open your mouth with four porcelain teeth. A mohair wig on a plaster pate. The original body is made of composition and has a wooden ball-connection. Price: About $900 at auction for a doll with all the original wig and body and antique costume.Comments: Big size dolls with a lovely bisque. Market report: There is an ongoing demand for collectors for very large, good quality German dolls. Many collectors use them for good effect on display in their doll rooms or other areas of their homes. Size: 15 inchMarks: NoneDate NoneDate Production: 1875Characteristics: Swivel head, blue glass press-paper eyes, closed mouth, original mohair wig, and original baby gusset co-body. With original chemistry, partial original store label and original shoes. The doll has a fragile antique dress as well. A strong body. Price: About $2,000 at auction; the trend for this doll is closer to $3,000. Comments: This doll is a perfect example of a small sized poupee. Many of these dolls are unmarked, making it difficult to identify. Wearing on the limbs of these dolls is common; This doll has an extraordinarily strong body (without wires, poking through your fingers or dirt, etc.). French fashion dolls were wonderful, full of worlds of outfits and accessories, just like modern fashion dolls. Market report: Although baby navel babies are not the rarest, dolls with very crumpled, sturdy baby bodies continue to do well in the market. Size: 6 1/2 inches (supplied in a wide variety of sizes)Marks: Sometimes paper label; This doll is marked as O'Neill on the bottom of the leg. Production date: 1912-Characteristics: All-Bisque doll. One-footed/torso legs with arms united on the shoulders. Painted, side eyes. Manufactured originally by Borgfeldt, later Joseph Kallus and Jesco in the 1980s, plus many other companies. Kewpies are made of many materials. The dolls have small blue wings. Price: This doll, about $200 to $300 in excellent condition because of the size; Less for small examples.Comments: There are many kewpie competitors, all-bisque, that resemble Kewpies. There are also Kewpie knock-offs made in Japan. Market Report: The great thing about Kewpies is that everyone loves them, and almost every collector of antique dolls wants at least one in the collection. Although it is a very common doll, Kewpies is always desirable. Kewpies in action poses or in molded clothing can be worth much more, with rarities in excellent condition bringing a few thousand dollars to auction. Size: 3 3/4 inches to 6 inchesMarks: No in sight (clothes sewn). Production date: Circa 1895Characteristy: Dolls shoulder heads on tissue organs with lower hands and legs of an unglazed bis. The groom and children have moulded and dyed hair. The bride and bridesmaid have glass eyes and individually colored eyelashes. Price: About $625 at auction in 1998. This set today will have several dolls sold in the $200 range individually.Comments: Original costumes are highly prized. The wedding party includes the bride, groom, bridesmaid, flower girl and ring bearer. Simon and #1160s are commonly referred to as little women. Market report: It is always advisable to find a matching set like this, and bisque doll house dolls in the original hot clothes on the market. Size: 4 inches highMark: None.Date production: 1890s to early 1900s. A bisque doll with moulded hair, usually with a hair bandage. Head, lower arms and lower legs of the bisque; the rest of the body tissue. Painted eyes. Price: about $125 to Comments: These dolls are children for dollhouses; about 4 inches compared to the size of an adult doll house from this period from 6 to 7 inches. These miniature dolls are hard to find with original tissue bodies, since the bodies are often very fragile. Market report: These dolls appeal to both miniaturists and collectors of antique dolls. Size: The doll comes in two dimensions: 5 3/4 inches and 7 inchesMark: 208 on the back of the head; paper label on the chest that says: PRIZE BABY/ REG U.S. PAT OFF. MADE IN GERMANY. Production date: 1914; Manufactured for George Borgfeldt.Characteristics: Chubby all-bisk tot, glass eyes, painted features, and shared on the shoulders and hips: molded shoes (painted black with amber soles) and molded waffle socks. The doll has an original paper label on its chest. Dolls often have sleep eyes and stained eyelashes. Joint loops; The smaller doll is marked as 208 3 inside the legs; more marked 208 4. Price: About $200 smaller; $300 larger. More for an all-original outfit or original box. Market Report: Up (especially those with labels) as collectors enjoy all-bis dolls with good identifying information such as label. In addition, these dolls have a plump appeal and are one of the few early American all-bisque. Size: 14 inchMarks: NoneDate Production: About 1800Characteristics: Wooden dolls with black enamel eyes, original worn finish. Price: About $700 at auction.Comments: Limbs doll may not always be original. Dolls are often retooled some time ago, as the outfits are fragile, and the silk in the back of the doll's female is often melted. Market Report: Typically, dolls in such a shabby state are undesirable, but it is difficult to find early wooden dolls in any condition. These dolls in mint state will cost many thousands of dollars. Size: 28 inchMarks: No production date: About 1850 to 1870. This type of China is known as flat top. Flat tops have high foreheads, hair part in the middle, smooth top with small curls, and often body tissues have leather limbs. Characteristics: The doll has lovely, well-painted features: body fabric and leather forearms. The hair is arranged in deeply sculpted curls. It's a heavy doll. It's hard to believe a child can play with this (or pick it up!). Price: About $600 to $700 in this size.Comments: These types of dolls are commonly referred to as China Heads, but they are also called porcelain dolls. Some of these dolls are marked, but the creators are rarely known. Many of them are unmarked. Market report: China dolls are hot on the market with earlier and rarer models to be the most desirable. Look for unusual hairstyles and hair decorations and a fine face painting. Size: 19 inchMarks: B (raised) 3 Production date: About 1895Characteristics: Blue glass eye inserts, painted feathered eyebrows, accented nostrils, open mouth, accented lips, four porcelain teeth, punctured ears, and a brunette mohair wig. French composition composition joints on the shoulders and hips. Price: About $850 at auction.Comments: The elaborate, well-preserved suit includes: Black cashmere-wool fitted vest with two-breasted effect, lily red enamel buttons in gilding. Black cashmere long jacket with a small velvet collar and matching buttons. White hard starched shirt, blue silk kummerbund, brown checkered wool trousers, knitted stockings, black leather shoes, a straw hat with muslim lining and black velvet edging. Group and stretch marks with a silver buckle. Market report: French dolls dressed as men are much less common than dolls dressed as women. Size: 10 1/2 inchesMark: IDEAL TOY CORP/VT-10 1/2 on the back of the head. Production date: 1958-1960Cctoritory: Vinyl doll with eyes of sleep. All other features are painted. The doll is in its original box and hang the tag, in the original outfit. Price: Mint in a box (MIB) in this state with hang tags, about $200 plus Comments: This doll has a rare pristine Upswept Bob hairstyle. The box is marked as Upswept Bob on the bottom valve. Market report: Average little Miss Revlon dolls have dropped in price, but there is still an active market for the very mint state of the doll. Size: 10 inchesDate production: 1971 to 1973Price: About $150 (dress wash; hair mussed; missing shoes); $250 to $300 in MIB condition.Comments: #1184 and #1185 highly regarded Madame Alexander dolls. Market report: This doll has dropped slightly in price because it has fallen into the overall price decline for modern Madame Alexander dolls. Size: 7 inchMarks: Doll marked MME ALEXANDER on the back; Dress marked Madame Alexander USADate production: 1934-1937Cactoria: Composition; jointly on the shoulders, hips and neck. Dolls often have minor crazy compositions. Mohair wig. Price: about $300 with the original box and wrist; Full of original outfit and accessories. Market report: This doll is trending down. Size: 21 inchesDate production: 1996Characteristics: Limited edition of fashion dolls: Travel gear including a faux crocodile handbag with a gold monogrammed buckle, suede corset belt, and gold chain. The doll has a steep waist. Price: $350 to $400 MIB with all accessories; hard to find at online auctions. Comments: 1996 was a very successful first year of reintroducing Cissy fashion dolls in the 1990s. Clothes of exceptional quality for this doll. Black spots on the leopard print are known to be painted in Sissy's hands. Market report: Many modern Cissy dolls were sold under their original retail, but this doll is hard to find and has retained value. Size: 14 inchMarks: Not on this doll; sometimes Alex is on the head. Production date: 1949-1956Cactories: Doll all hard plastic. Original, tagged outfit. Price: This doll is in a state of mint, hair in the original set and all the original costumes, that cost about $350 to $450. A similar Maggie, nude, sold for $275 on eBay.Comments: Maggie's face dolls came as walkers and and (this doll is not a walker and probably an earlier example). Market report: Unlike the modern Madame Alexander, a good vintage of Madame Alexander (until 1970) starts trending up again, price-wise. Size: 8 inchesMarks: ALEXANDER on the back; DIONNE/ALEXANDER on the neck. Clothing is also labeled Genuine / Dionne quintuplet Dolls / All Rights Reserved / Madame Alexander - N.Y. Production date: Mid-1930sCharacteristy: Composite dolls with painted eyes and facial features; dyed moulded hair. Price: About $200 to $300 each if mint; $1,000 to $1,500 for a full set of mint and all the original. In very good condition (missing some original outfits; some flaws and craziness), from $100 to $150 each. Comments: The dolls showed original outfits but lacked their pins. Market report: The complete set of Madame Alexander quintsets tends to be a bit down. Size: 8 inchMarks: VOGUE DOLL on backDate production: 1953Characteristics: Sleep eyes, stained eyelashes, and strung bodies. The garment is complete with black shoes, but the outfit comes with white boots. Clothing marked Original Dolls Vogue, Inc. Price: $200 to $300; more, sometimes much more if Strung Ginny has a rare outfit or if the doll is very mint.Comments: Usually eyebrows and eyelashes disappeared on this doll. Dolls of this era often have sleep eyes that stick as well. Some dolls have a variation of the hat that is not seen as often. This doll in very state of mint with wrist tags and dark eyebrows sold for $550 at the same auction. Market report: Vintage Ginny dolls tend to even or slightly down, and only Strung Ginneys shows an upward swing in prices. Stretched Ginny is traditionally strung (with elastic) hands, legs and hands and are not walkers. They always had their eyelashes drawn. Size: 8 inchesMarks: Ginny / Vogue Dolls Inc/Pat. No 2687954/Made in the U.S. on the back. Vogue Dolls, Inc. is blue on the white dress label. Production date: Circa 1957Characteristy: Sleep eyes, molded eyelashes; body walker (not bent knee). The outfit is marked, but the number of the outfit is unknown. The outfit includes navy panties, ginky marked shoes, and ginky white socks. Price: About $150 to $250.Comments: Mold lashes pedestrians usually sell less than lash-painted walkers. Jeannie is a hot doll with collectors. Market Report: Vintage Ginneys tend to even or slightly down, and only Strung Ginneys shows an upward swing in prices. Size: 8 inchesMarks: GINNY/VOGUE DOLLS INC/PAT PEND./MADE IN the U.S. back. Dress label: VOGUE DOLLS, Inc. / MEDFORD MASSA, USA / REG USA PAT. OFF. Production date: 1954Characterism: Sleeping eyes and stained eyelashes. Some dolls that are strangely strung can be transient. The foot walker has legs, but the head and arms are strung. The outfit includes panties that match the dress. Price: about $1,200 and on Comments: Black Ginny is very rare and very welcome collectors, which is why the cost of the doll is so high. Teh Teh completely through plastic and not painted. Very few black Ginneys were manufactured. Market report: Still rare and desirable, although usually now bringing in less than $2,000 which was common at Ginny market height. Size: 10 1/2 inchesMarks: JILL/VOGUE DOLLS Inc./MADE IN USA©1957. Also, Vogue Dolls, Inc. is in blue on a white dress label. Production date: 1957-1960Characterism: All hard plastic, curved knee walker. Sleeping eyes. The doll comes in several hair colors. Price: Approximately $150 in all-original and excellent condition, such as this doll. Less for more common outfits and less condition; More for aspirational evening outfits and very mint dolls.Comments: Jill is Jeannie's big sister. She represents a teenager. It is not known if the hat for the outfit is original. Heart-shaped earrings and Jill's original earrings; The doll wears garter stockings and panties, as well as a bra, as well as white sandals. The market is a bit bland for Jills, especially compared to her younger sister Ginny.Market Report: There is a real lull in Jill's market. Only rare outfits and pristine mint dolls will bring in more than $200. Basic dolls in swimsuits/undies can fetch under $90, even when in excellent condition. Size: 11 1/2 inchesMarks: First Bubble Cut, 1961: Barbie/Pat Prend/C MCMLVII/by/Mattel/Inc. Remaining Bubble Cuts: Midge T.M./c 1962/Barbie/c 1958/by/Mattel, Inc. (it's called Midge/Barbie Body). Production date: 1961-1967Cactoria: Vinyl. First Barbie did not have hair in the tail; Hairstyle was considered quite an update of the doll. The doll in the photo has a somewhat combed bubble; Completely mint doll bubble will be a little tougher. A doll with an original box, swimsuit, booklet and shoes. Price: Dolls that need fixing can net up to $90. Mint doll: $100 to $150. Mint doll in a box: $200 to $300. Comments: While this doll seems to be the hand part, it's only hair styled that way. True Bubble side-side dolls are rare. Other rare and sought-after variations are brown hair bubbles (light brown) and white ginger bubbles (pale blond hair and pale, almost white lips). Price of the outfit: about $50 to $75 mint and complete.Comments: Titian bubble cut dolls are desirable, but not as rare as dolls with brown hair, called brownettes - which are quite rare. Market report: There has been a downward trend in prices for the average Bubble Cut Barbie, although rarer hair colors (titian, brownettes, white ginger) are still doing well. Also, a truly mint in a box can exceed $300. Size: 11 1/2 inches Date production: 2000Characteristics: The doll wears thick braids and carries Toto, her dog. It also comes with a plastic basket. The doll wears red ruby slippers that light up when you push the doll down, and the doll says: There is no place like and Toto, I have a feeling that we're not in Kansas anymore. Price: $10 to 30. The doll is readily available and is part of a set of five, five, Glinda, Scarecrow, Cowardly Lion and Tin Man. The kit is good value for money. There are also three Kelly and Tommy Munchkins available. Comments: This is Barbie from the game or the pink box line of dolls. There were two other Barbie Dorothy dolls - one of the Hollywood Legends collection, which is much rarer than this doll and Dorothy's porcelain. The clothes on Hollywood legends Dorothy are much less shiny, and there is a ruffled skirt visible under the gingham dress. Trash in an earlier Dorothy straw, and this one is plastic. This doll is a cross collectible and is also collected by The Wizard of Oz Collectors. Market report: This doll has not grown significantly in price since its release. Release.
